

Model answer 2

1. Do you think that young people should do more sport in schools today?

I certainly do. I think that young people today are getting quite lazy and this is bad for their health. I'm convinced that schools put too much emphasis on academic subjects, so I firmly believe that good sports classes and sports facilities are very important.

2. Do you believe that children can learn a lot from team sports?

Yes, I do. Children need to learn to work in groups and co-operate as well as build leadership skills. Sport is also good for children to learn to be competitive in a mature manner. It's also very important that children keep fit and healthy. For example, it's been proven that children who learn to play team sports grow up to be more understanding and co-operative adults.
